

ABSTRACT

Plural window elements are set in one edge window, and edge detection is performed every each the window element, and calculation and determination about its result are made inside
5 an image processing apparatus. A user can freely set a width of the window element and a distance between the adjacent window elements.